Today's Objectives

Pacific Power's Community Benefits and Impacts Advisory Group

Focus on equity and a clean energy future in Oregon in accordance with HB 2021

1. Set the stage for the upcoming Integrated Resource Plan (IRP) filing
2. Discuss what Members can expect from the upcoming Biennial Report Draft
3. Hear from Members on what they'd like to see in 2027 engagements

Closing the Loop

Closing the Loop | September Meeting Recap

Topics:

- Community-Based Renewable Energy
- Co-Benefits & the EJC Index
- EJC Index Demonstration
- Biennial Report: Review & Next Steps

Next Steps:

- Continued dialogue around Section 6 Items A-H to develop upcoming Biennial Report

Feedback:

- CBRE in general is a concept that is difficult for the community to understand. When talking about the kinds of projects they want to see come out of CBRE programs, the context does not match the definition of CBREs
- To incorporate more community data into the EJC Index, an advisor suggested using CCC data
- CBIs must account for prolonged poverty and long term reliance on energy assistance programs
- PacifiCorp should begin thinking about what will happen when about higher low-income or lower middle-class customers can no longer afford utility bills, as that is the reality of the near future

Biennial Report

The Biennial Report will function as a communication companion to the Clean Energy Plan. The Report aims to:

- Center a frontline community impact lens across Pacific Power programs and processes.
- Present Customer Benefit Indicator (CBI) metrics at an elevated level, focusing on clarity and relevance.
- Use a visually accessible summary format, including pictographs, to support clear and effective frontline communication.
- Incorporate qualitative context and perspectives that reflect the lived experiences and feedback of frontline communities, Community-Based Organizations (CBOs), and Tribal Nations

Evolution

From Community Benefit Indicators to Community Benefits and Impacts

One of the most significant evolutions since the first report has been a shift in focus from Community Benefit Indicators (CBIs) as the primary organizing framework to a broader discussion of Community Benefits and Impacts (CB&Is).

While metrics and indicators remain important tools for measuring outcomes and supporting accountability, Advisory Group feedback consistently reinforced that community experiences cannot be fully understood through metrics alone. Participants emphasized the importance of understanding both benefits and burdens, community narratives, local context, and lived experience alongside quantitative measurements.

As a result, this report places greater emphasis on the broader concept of Community Benefits and Impacts, recognizing that meaningful outcomes are informed by both data and community perspectives. Community Benefit Indicators are presented as an important future development within that broader framework rather than the central focus of engagement discussions.

Evolution

How Advisory Groups Informed this Understanding

A central focus of Oregon's HB 2021 engagement process has been understanding how the benefits and impacts of the clean energy transition are experienced by different communities. Through discussions with advisory group members representing environmental justice communities, Tribal Nations, local governments, community-based organizations, business interests, labor, and customers across Oregon, a more holistic definition of community benefits and impacts emerged.

Advisory group participants consistently emphasized that benefits should be understood as more than direct economic outcomes. While affordability, local investment, and job creation remain important measures of success, members highlighted the importance of considering how energy decisions affect quality of life, health, resilience, access to resources, cultural values, and long-term community well-being.

Participants identified several dimensions of community benefit, including:

- Affordable and reliable energy service.
- Access to clean energy programs and technologies.
- Economic opportunities, including workforce development and family-wage jobs.
- Improved community resilience to extreme weather and outages.
- Reduced environmental and public health burdens.
- Meaningful participation in utility planning and decision-making.
- Investments supporting historically underserved and rural communities.

Engagement Groups

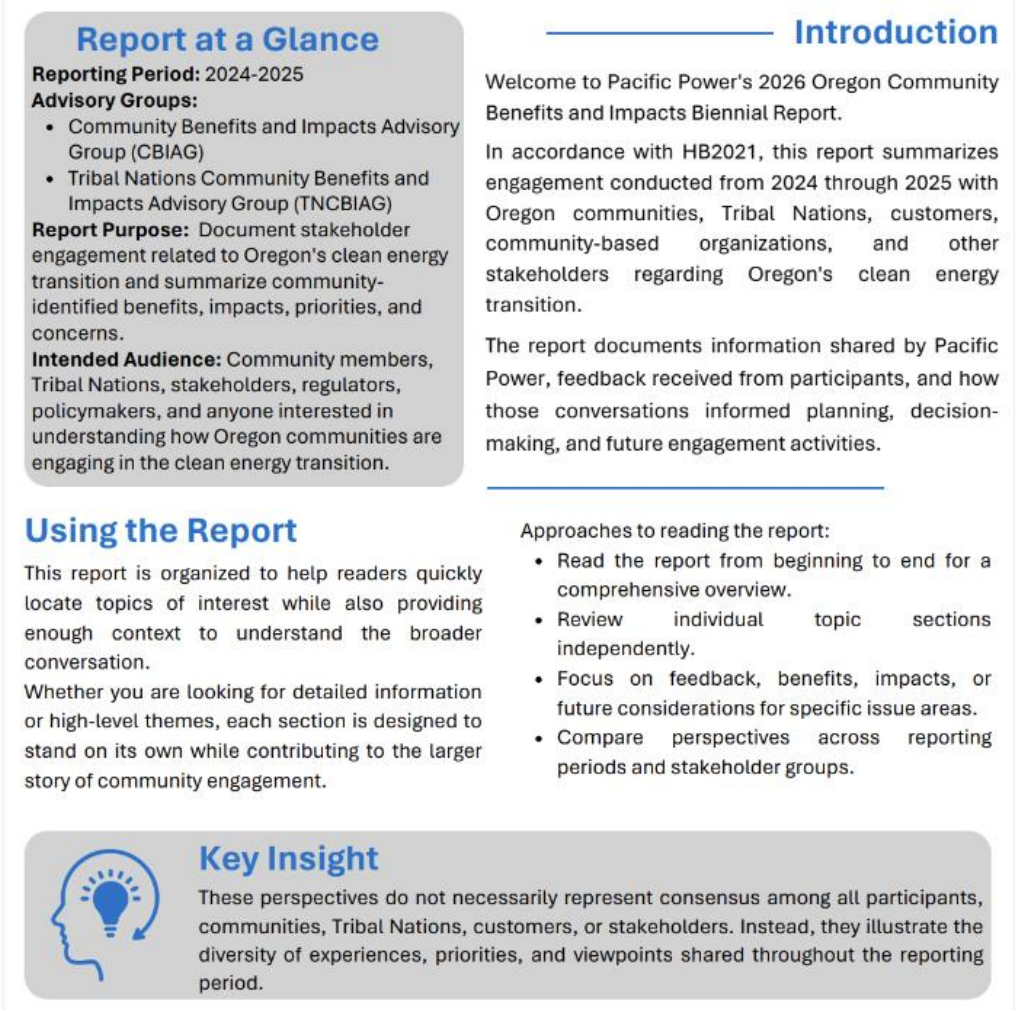
- Community Benefits & Impacts Advisory Group (CBIAG)
- Tribal Nations Community Benefits & Impacts Advisory Group (TNCBIAG)

Purpose

Document engagement and illustrate how community and Tribal perspectives inform Pacific Power's clean energy transition planning and decision-making.

Audience

Community members, Tribal Nations, regulators, policymakers, customers, and other interested parties/persons.



Report at a Glance

Reporting Period: 2024-2025
Advisory Groups:
- Community Benefits and Impacts Advisory Group (CBIAG)
- Tribal Nations Community Benefits and Impacts Advisory Group (TNCBIAG)

Report Purpose: Document stakeholder engagement related to Oregon's clean energy transition and summarize community-identified benefits, impacts, priorities, and concerns.
Intended Audience: Community members, Tribal Nations, stakeholders, regulators, policymakers, and anyone interested in understanding how Oregon communities are engaging in the clean energy transition.

Introduction

Welcome to Pacific Power's 2026 Oregon Community Benefits and Impacts Biennial Report.

In accordance with HB2021, this report summarizes engagement conducted from 2024 through 2025 with Oregon communities, Tribal Nations, customers, community-based organizations, and other stakeholders regarding Oregon's clean energy transition.

The report documents information shared by Pacific Power, feedback received from participants, and how those conversations informed planning, decision-making, and future engagement activities.

Using the Report

This report is organized to help readers quickly locate topics of interest while also providing enough context to understand the broader conversation.
Whether you are looking for detailed information or high-level themes, each section is designed to stand on its own while contributing to the larger story of community engagement.

Approaches to reading the report:
- Read the report from beginning to end for a comprehensive overview.
- Review individual topic sections independently.
- Focus on feedback, benefits, impacts, or future considerations for specific issue areas.
- Compare perspectives across reporting periods and stakeholder groups.

Key Insight

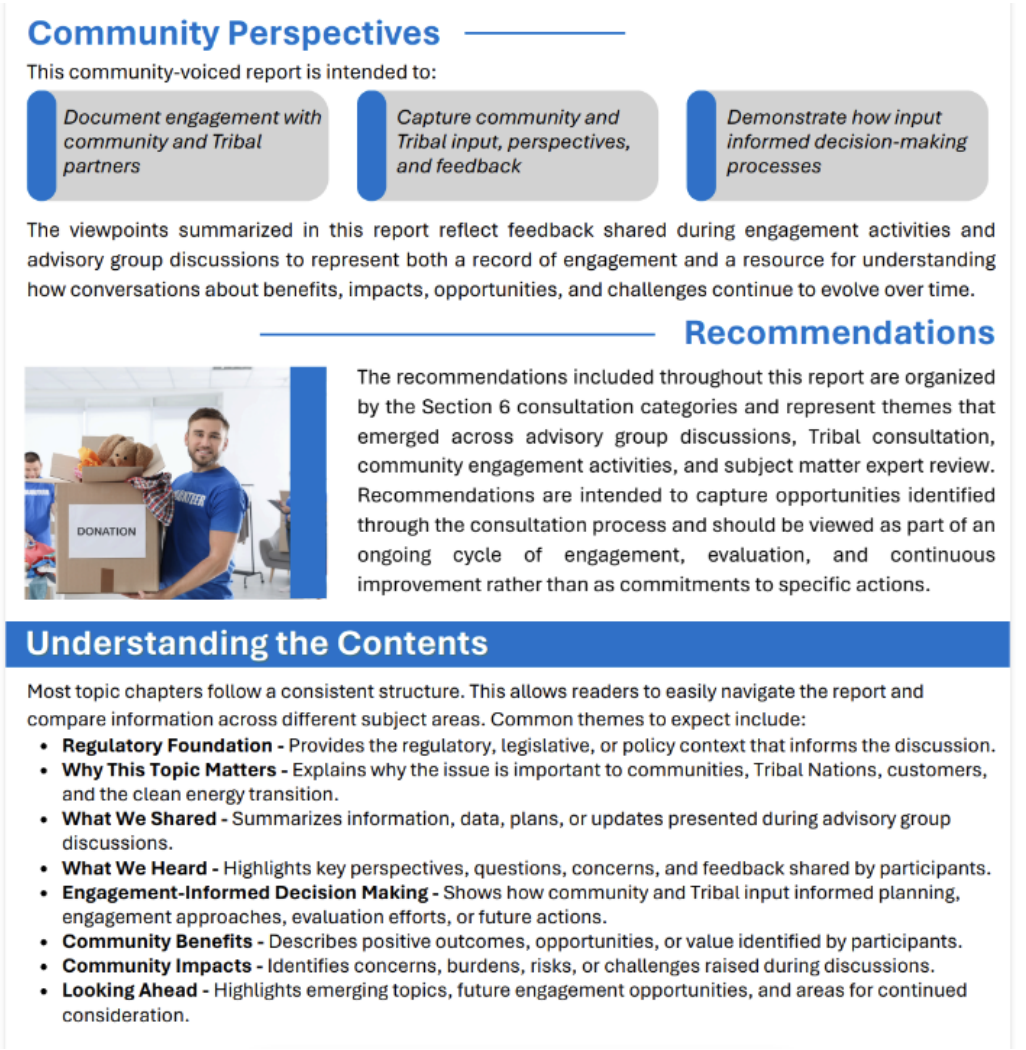
These perspectives do not necessarily represent consensus among all participants, communities, Tribal Nations, customers, or stakeholders. Instead, they illustrate the diversity of experiences, priorities, and viewpoints shared throughout the reporting period.

How to use the 2026 Oregon Community Benefits & Impacts Report

Navigate the report each topic section follows a consistent structure:

- Regulatory Foundation
- Why This Topic Matters
- What We Shared
- What We Heard
- Engagement-Informed Decision Making
- Community Benefits
- Community Impacts
- Looking Ahead

This report serves as both a record of engagement and a resource for understanding how community and Tribal perspectives shape the benefits, impacts, opportunities, and challenges of Oregon's clean energy transition.



Community Perspectives

This community-voiced report is intended to:

- Document engagement with community and Tribal partners
- Capture community and Tribal input, perspectives, and feedback
- Demonstrate how input informed decision-making processes

The viewpoints summarized in this report reflect feedback shared during engagement activities and advisory group discussions to represent both a record of engagement and a resource for understanding how conversations about benefits, impacts, opportunities, and challenges continue to evolve over time.

Recommendations

The recommendations included throughout this report are organized by the Section 6 consultation categories and represent themes that emerged across advisory group discussions, Tribal consultation, community engagement activities, and subject matter expert review. Recommendations are intended to capture opportunities identified through the consultation process and should be viewed as part of an ongoing cycle of engagement, evaluation, and continuous improvement rather than as commitments to specific actions.

Understanding the Contents

Most topic chapters follow a consistent structure. This allows readers to easily navigate the report and compare information across different subject areas. Common themes to expect include:

- Regulatory Foundation - Provides the regulatory, legislative, or policy context that informs the discussion.
- Why This Topic Matters - Explains why the issue is important to communities, Tribal Nations, customers, and the clean energy transition.
- What We Shared - Summarizes information, data, plans, or updates presented during advisory group discussions.
- What We Heard - Highlights key perspectives, questions, concerns, and feedback shared by participants.
- Engagement-Informed Decision Making - Shows how community and Tribal input informed planning, engagement approaches, evaluation efforts, or future actions.
- Community Benefits - Describes positive outcomes, opportunities, or value identified by participants.
- Community Impacts - Identifies concerns, burdens, risks, or challenges raised during discussions.
- Looking Ahead - Highlights emerging topics, future engagement opportunities, and areas for continued consideration.
